Who is Deya Elayyan

Deya Elayyan is a Jordanian content creator, media personality, and comedian of Palestinian origin who has carved a significant niche in the digital media landscape with content that blends humor and social commentary. Born on June 15, 1993, in Amman, Jordan, he was raised in Chicago, USA, before returning to settle in Jordan. He holds a Bachelor's degree in Civil Engineering from the University of Illinois at Chicago and worked for the Illinois Department of Transportation before pivoting to pursue his passion for comedy. Elayyan's journey into content creation began spontaneously in 2018. He quickly gained widespread popularity for his satirical videos discussing everyday issues in Arab society. His diverse content includes short comedy skits, stand-up comedy performances, and his popular YouTube series "Kabsa," where he hosts well-known personalities in an unscripted, candid format. Beyond comedy, he has also ventured into music, releasing songs like "Super Basha." Alongside his artistic endeavors, Elayyan is known for his commitment to humanitarian causes, having actively participated in charitable initiatives in Gaza, Kenya, Syria, and Lebanon.

Achievements of Deya Elayyan

Deya Elayyan launched the successful and spontaneous comedy interview series "Kabsa" on his YouTube channel, garnering millions of views. The show features Elayyan surprising prominent Arab personalities at their homes or workplaces for an unexpected interview, a unique format that has earned the program widespread acclaim. He presented a dedicated comedy segment, "Laugh with Deya Elayyan," on the major morning show "Sabah Al Arabiya" on the Al Arabiya news channel. This feature allowed him to reach a broader pan-Arab audience beyond social media, solidifying his status as a leading young comedian in the region. In addition to his comedy work, Elayyan ventured into the music industry by releasing viral singles, most notably the song "Super Basha." This move showcased another dimension of his artistic talent, demonstrating his ability to create diverse entertainment content that combines humorous lyrics with catchy rhythms.
