Who is Maya Hojeij

Maya Hojeij is a prominent Lebanese media personality with over two decades of experience in business journalism, establishing her as a leading voice in the Arab world. She is currently a Senior Business Anchor at Asharq with Bloomberg, where she hosts the daily show "East West" and the weekly "Asia Report," having joined the network in July 2020. Hojeij's career began at Abu Dhabi TV, followed by a significant ten-year tenure at Al Arabiya News Channel starting in 2002, where she was a key part of its launch team and one of the first stock market anchors on Arab television. From 2012 to 2020, she served as a Senior News Presenter and Chief Editor at Dubai TV, where she hosted the popular business show "#Mal". Beyond broadcasting, Maya is a university professor at the Mohammed Bin Rashid School for Communication at the American University in Dubai. She is also an accomplished executive media trainer, coaching C-level executives and public figures. An advocate for youth and women empowerment, she launched the podcast "Ahweh w Khabriyeh" to share the success stories of female entrepreneurs. She is currently based in Dubai, United Arab Emirates.

Achievements of Maya Hojeij

Maya Hojeij has moderated panels and spoken at the world's leading forums, including the Future Investment Initiative (FII), the World Government Summit, the World Economic Forum, and the Global Women's Forum. Her role in these high-profile events involves shaping critical conversations among global leaders and decision-makers. Recognized as a pioneer in financial journalism in the region, Hojeij was one of the first anchors to specialize in stock market reporting on Arab television. Since her early days at Al Arabiya in 2002, she has been instrumental in making complex financial news accessible to a broader audience. In 2025, she launched "East West Trump 2.0" and the accompanying podcast "Trump 2.0 from the Newsroom." This initiative provides sharp analysis of U.S. politics and its global economic impact, showcasing her ability to develop specialized and timely content.
