Who is Mohammad Albattikhi

Mohammad Albattikhi is recognized as one of the leading tech entrepreneurs and investors in Jordan and the region, renowned for his exceptional ability to launch and scale innovative startups. Holding an MBA, Mohammad leverages his academic background to drive leadership in complex tech project management. He emerged as an inspiring entrepreneurial figure through founding Bilforon, a successful Jordanian app that connects home chefs with consumers, creating job opportunities and empowering local communities through technology. Mohammad's career centers on tech innovation and strategic growth. He currently serves as Director of the Sanad Platform at the Ministry of Digital Economy and Entrepreneurship—the central government hub for digital services in Jordan. This role reflects the trust placed in his technical expertise and his capacity to lead national digital transformation initiatives. Mohammad also has a proven track record in digital product development, having served as Chief Product Officer (CPO) at Himam and as founder of Awraqi.ai, a platform leveraging AI for innovative solutions—making him one of the few experts who bridge entrepreneurial vision with advanced technical execution. With an active presence in the entrepreneurial ecosystem, Mohammad Albattikhi is a trusted advisor to numerous companies and international organizations in innovation and startup development. His impact extends through speaking engagements and educational programs aimed at empowering the next generation of entrepreneurs, emphasizing the value of learning from experience and building products that address real market needs. Driven by a passion for technology, a commitment to national digital advancement, and the ability to turn ambitious ideas into reality, Mohammad stands out as one of Jordan's foremost digital leaders and entrepreneurs.
