

Motasm Mekdad

Toyor Al Janah Star, Singer & Content Creator

2001-07-27 - Jordanian - Kuwait

Read More

Who is Motasm Mekdad

Motasm Mekdad, widely known as "Assomi," is a Jordanian star of Palestinian origin who gained fame as a prominent child performer on the Toyor Al Janah channel, founded by his father, Khalid Mekdad. Born in Amman on July 27, 2001, he began his artistic journey in 2008 alongside his elder brother, Waleed Mekdad. Together, they released a series of hit songs that became popular across the Arab world, including "Assomi & Waleed" and "Sayaratna Al Amoura." As he matured, Motasm transitioned from a child star into a digital content creator, establishing himself as a leading young social media influencer. He co-manages a popular YouTube channel, "Assomi & Waleed," with his brother, where they share family vlogs, challenges, and daily life adventures with millions of followers. His current content focuses on family-friendly entertainment, reflecting his personal growth while upholding the family values his audience has come to know. Motasm currently resides in Kuwait, where he continues to balance his media career with his personal life.

Achievements of Motasm Mekdad

Motasm Mekdad achieved widespread fame across the Arab world following his debut on the Toyor Al Janah channel in 2008. Throughout his early career, he performed numerous successful songs that became a cherished part of an entire generation's childhood, cementing his status as one of the channel's most beloved stars. He successfully transitioned from a child star to an influential content creator on social media platforms. Alongside his brother Waleed, he built a highly successful joint YouTube channel, "Assomi & Waleed," which attracts millions of views by featuring diverse family-oriented and entertainment content that resonates with a young adult audience.

Read More