Who is Samaa Saleh

Samaa Saleh is a Jordanian educational trainer and storyteller specializing in faith-based education and value instillation for children and young adults. She is the founder of "Nadi Ghaith" (Ghaith Club), an educational initiative designed to strengthen children's connection to Islam through interactive activities, purposeful storytelling, and a blend of play, nature, and Quranic reflection (Tadabbur). Saleh conducts workshops and training courses for mothers and educators, focusing on modern parenting techniques and creative, faith-informed strategies for handling behavioral challenges like stubbornness. Known by the titles "Al-Ruwaida" and "Storyteller for the Young and Old," she excels at simplifying complex theological concepts into engaging and captivating narratives. Samaa Saleh has been featured on television programs, including appearances on Roya TV and Al-Hadath TV, to discuss her expertise in education and storytelling. She is also an active presence on social media, where she shares parenting advice and inspirational stories.

Achievements of Samaa Saleh

Samaa Saleh founded "Nadi Ghaith" (Ghaith Club), a pioneering educational project aimed at building a strong faith-based identity in children aged 5 to 10. The club utilizes a unique methodology that integrates storytelling and nature-based play to instill Islamic values and concepts. She has developed and delivered highly sought-after specialized programs and workshops, most notably a workshop titled "My Child is Stubborn" ("Tifli Anid"), which equips parents with practical tools for managing defiant behavior. Saleh has also conducted training courses in collaboration with educational platforms like "I'dad Academy." Saleh has successfully reached a broad audience through both digital and traditional media. Her features on influential television shows, such as "Donia Ya Donia" on Roya TV, have helped disseminate her educational message widely and solidify her status as an expert in her field.
