Who is Sarah Ashkar

Sarah Ashkar, widely known by her nickname 'Rapunzel of the Arabs,' is a prominent Lebanese content creator and social media influencer. She gained fame for her exceptionally long hair and diverse content spanning beauty, fashion, and lifestyle. Born on March 5, 2004, Ashkar holds dual Lebanese and Turkish citizenship, with her mother being of Turkish descent. She built her presence on platforms like Instagram, TikTok, and YouTube, where she shares her daily life, hair care tips, challenges, and entertaining vlogs with her followers. Academically, Sarah initially pursued a degree in medicine, influenced by her family's background. However, she later pivoted to follow her passion, switching her major to a field related to design and visual communication. In addition to content creation, Ashkar has ventured into acting, with a role in a project titled "Jalta." She aims to continue growing her audience base and explore new opportunities in fields like acting and hosting, using her platforms to be a positive influence and share her personal journey with her followers.

Achievements of Sarah Ashkar

Sarah Ashkar has built a significant online presence and a unique personal brand under the nickname 'Rapunzel of the Arabs.' She successfully leveraged her distinctively long hair to become a well-known figure in the beauty and hair care community across the Arab world. She made her acting debut with a role in a production titled "Jalta." This marked her first official step into the entertainment industry beyond social media, opening doors for a potential career in drama and performance arts.
